President Advised to Withdraw His Court Change Bill

Either That, or Restrict It to Asking Only Two New Justices

NEED HAS PASSED

Advisors Tell F. D. R. Court Has Already Liberalized Itself

WASHINGTON, (AP)—President Roosevelt's closest senate advisors were urging him Thursday to withdraw his court reorganization bill or restrict it to two additional justices. They argued that the original bill was not longer needed, because the court was constraining the constitution more broadly and because Justice Van Devanter's retirement was approaching.

Compromise Likely

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Insiders took it for granted Wednesday night that there will be a compromise—perhaps soon—on the Roosevelt court reorganization bill. Speaking privately, men identified with each side of the battle said that such an ending to the conflict was in the making even before the retirement of Associate Justice Willis Van Devanter.

It was revealed that senate administration leaders had prepared a surprise coup on a compromise at Tuesday's voting session of the senate judiciary committee—one, however, which did not quite come off. It was rumored Wednesday that more members of the high court may follow Van Devanter into retirement. (At Chicago, Senator Lewis (Dem. Ill.) asserted he was "quite sure" at least two more judges had signified to the president and others their intention to retire.)

Two possible obstacles. There was continued speculation over Justice Van Devanter's successor. In virtually all quarters, it was generally agreed that high on the list of possible nominees to the court stood the name of Senator Joseph T. Robinson of Arkansas, who as Democratic leader has deftly guided New Deal legislation through the senate. Two possible obstacles to his appointment were talked of as frequently. The first was a provision of the Constitution saying that: "No senator or representative shall, during the time for which he was elected, be appointed to any civil office under the authority of the United States, which shall have been created, or the emoluments whereof shall have been increased during such time."

There were those, Senator Adams (Dem. Cal.) among them, who argued that passage a few months ago of the bill permitting Supreme Court justices to retire at full pay for life brought Robinson under this constitutional ban. Others took the opposite view. The president and Attorney General Cummings were keeping an open mind on the question. The former said that he was not prepared to venture an opinion and Cummings called it a delicate question which he could not discuss. The attorney general believed, however that once a successor to Van Devanter was placed on the bench

MIND Your MANNERS

Test your knowledge of correct social usage, by answering the following questions, then checking against the authoritative answers below:

1. Should one open a telephone conversation with "Who is this?"
  2. Which person should be the one to close a telephone call?
  3. Is it thoughtful to wait until mealtime to telephone?
  4. How should a married woman making a social telephone call announce herself?
  5. How should a clerk in a department store answer the telephone?
- What would you do if—
- (a) Someone has left a telephone number for you to call, but has not left his name? Call the number and say—
  - (b) "Who lives at this telephone number?"
  - (c) "This is John Doe speaking. Did someone at this number call me?"

- Answers
1. No. Say, "Hello. May I speak to Mr. Blank?"
  2. The one making the call.
  3. No. Better just before or after mealtime.
  4. "This is Lucy Fortune speaking."
  5. "This is McDonald's store, the fur department."

Congressmen Put Over Smart Coup

Iowa Delegation Slips Appointment Past Democratic Command

By the Associated Press
WASHINGTON—Iowa's corn-fed congressman put one over on Charlie Michaelson, the Democratic's astute publicity director, by snatching a fat patronage job right out of his teeth. They were as tickled if they'd robbed a melon patch. The job was the $7,500 a year secretaryship of the federal communication commission and the job getter was Thos. J. Slowie (pronounced Sloe-ee). Slowie was an upcoming insurance salesman before his entry into Iowa politics and what he doesn't know about telephone and radio communication could be measured in high-multiple kilowatts. But the congressman who helped put him over thought that was all, the better—open mind, you know, and no tieups with the utility business.

"Ex-Officio"
Michaelson had intended the job for Robert L. Berger, a satin-voiced radio hand who did a satisfying job on the broadcast end of the national committee's campaign work last fall. He even had Postmaster General Farley's approval. Usually that is enough. But there was a slip in another direction. Slowie blossomed as an Iowa political starter in 1930 when he had a hand in managing the campaign of Bernard M. Jacobson, who that year broke the Republican spell cast over Iowa and became the first Democratic representative in years. Slowie went along as secretary to Jacobson and in 1932 had a large hand in swinging the Iowa delegation to Roosevelt and in putting five more Democratic congressmen in the house. After that he had a big say-so in the Iowa delegation and often was called the "ex-officio" member. When Jacobson died a year or so back, Slowie set himself to succeed him but Iowa's long sentimental ties at times between corn crops. It would be nice if Bern-

The concluding number on the program of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau's first annual rally at the Fruit & Truck Experiment Station last Saturday was a fox race. While it was more or less of a synthetic affair—it being a pet fox, and the dogs being instructed not to bite—the yapping of 30-odd fox-hounds on a cross-country run was something to think about. Here you see the hounds lined up for the getaway, barking furiously at the fox, which on the right, seems to be looking for a piece of distant landscape. A trainer dampened the fox's feet and belly, and led him over the course to establish the trail; the hounds were turned loose—and a few minutes later the hunt ended at the base of a tree, Mr. Reynard being safe in a box hidden in the upper branches.

Hope Man Elected Arkansas Director at Memphis Convention

Terrell Cornelius of Hope and C. F. Greenlee of Brinkley were elected Arkansas directors of the Broadway of America Highway association which concluded a two-day session at Memphis Wednesday.

H. W. Stanley of the Dallas chamber of commerce was re-elected president of the association for a third term. He was a delegate to the first convention 10 years ago. Resolutions condemned "speed traps" and officers who prey on unsuspecting motorists and "under the guise of local highway violations make unnecessary arrests, fattening their own individual purses with fines and costs." Delegates also recommended that members of the different states entered by U. S. Highway 70 "see that all red tape, delays at ports of entry at state lines be eliminated and that only competent and courteous employees be assigned to meet and deal with tourists, who will make friends and guests of tourists who enter their state."

The Tennessee Highway Department was asked to "eliminate all curves" on Highway 70 in the state "so as to conform with requirements of the federal Bureau of Highways."

Brockelhurst, Girl Return to Lonoke

Girl Companion, Though Disillusioned, Still Loves Killer

LONOKE, Ark.—(AP)—Lonoke county officials laid plans Thursday to bring to trial before the end of next week Lester Brockelhurst, 23, confessed hitch-hiking slayer, and his traveling companion, Bernice Felton, 18.

Prosecutor George Hartje filed first degree murder charges against both and placed an additional accessory charge against the girl.

Arrive at Lonoke

LITTLE ROCK—Lester Brockelhurst and Bernice Felton, near Brewster, N. Y., where they confessed to killing Victor A. Gates of Little Rock, May 6, after he had given them a "lift" in his car, were returned to Lonoke Wednesday night.

Brockelhurst also has admitted having killed two other men, one in Illinois, the other in Texas, since he left Rockford, March 31, with the daughter of the man who signed his parole to gain his freedom from the Illinois reformatory.

Both the couple and Sheriff Troy Carroll and Joe Melton, deputy prosecuting attorney of Lonoke, who returned them, were worn out from the long trip during which very little sleep was possible.

Brockelhurst was not questioned Wednesday night because Sheriff Carroll did not want to excite him. Several times on the return trip and prior to the departure, the blond slayer had collapsed. He fell to the gravel walk just as the party reached the courthouse steps in Lonoke. The sheriff, taking charge of the situation, soon revived him by applying cold water to his forehead and patting his wrists.

The girl stood aside, showing no emotion.

Brockelhurst's fainting spells are nothing new to her, she said. He suffers them frequently. Her statement that "the least bit of excitement causes Lester to faint," astonished her listeners.

"These killings he has admitted and the numerous hold-ups he perpetrated, didn't they have any effect on him?" she was asked.

"No, that kind of excitement didn't bother him."

The girl repeated her love for Brockelhurst.

"I can't help it," she said, "I still love him and I always will. However, I've lost faith in him since I've learned all the falsehoods he's told me."

She admitted that she might be an expectant mother.

Sheriff Carroll said that the couple gave him no trouble. He was constantly chained to both on the return trip.

Advises Germany to Respect U. S.

Professor Returning From American Tour Recalls 1914-17

BERLIN, Germany.—(AP)—Prof. Friedrich Schoenemann, just back from a tour of the United States, Wednesday night predicted that public opinion in America could be mobilized for war against Germany "within a few hours." If such a war were pictured as a great crusade for a great ideal.

Lecturing before the Institute of Politics at the University of Berlin, Professor Schoenemann recalled that "in the great war it took three years to prepare the American people for entry against Germany."

"But in the case of similar international complications today, how long would it take?" he asked, and answered himself, "perhaps hours; perhaps only minutes."

This potential American willingness to enlist for another crusade against Germany, he said, was due to "long continued, skillful and thorough British propaganda, plus in recent years skillful Communist and Jewish propaganda."

Referring to the recent Nazi press attacks on Mayor Fiorello H. La Guardia of New York, the lecturer lamented the folly of "judging all Americans by La Guardia."

Germany's failure to estimate America correctly from 1914 to 1917 "cost us the war," he said. "Is it wise to repeat that mistake by despising America's culture now?"

The United States exported 12,253,000 pounds of explosives in 1936, a 25 per cent increase over the year before.

Might Move Up If Robinson Takes Position on Court

Little Rock Hears Bob Bailey Would Then Become Governor

ELECTION REQUIRED

Carl Bailey Would Be Appointed Senator, Then Face Election

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The possibility of Senator Joseph T. Robinson being appointed successor to Willis Van Devanter on the United States Supreme Court, and the effect such a development would have on state politics dominated capital discussions Thursday.

Closest advisors of Governor Bailey asserted there was little doubt Robinson would receive the court appointment.

Informed persons predicted Bailey would resign as governor if Robinson went to the court, elevating Lieutenant Governor Bob Bailey to the governorship.

Bob Bailey then would appoint Carl Bailey to the senate pending a special election. The election probably would be held within 60 days after the temporary appointment. The law provides it must be held within 30 days from the issuance of the call by the governor.

U. S. Constitution Is 150 Years Old

Birthday of Great American Document Falls on May 25

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
AP Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Whatever the outcome of congressional and court wrangling over the constitution, the document itself—now in its 150th year—is expected to last for at least 500 more years.

The writing has faded some but still is legible and the original four pieces of parchment—28 1/2 by 22 1/2 inches each—are in excellent preservation, according to manuscript experts at the Library of Congress.

The fading was arrested in 1921 when the document was transferred from the state department to a marble shrine in the library which fends the atomic rays of the sun by an amber screen between plates of glass.

It was May 15, 150 years ago, when the "founding fathers"—most of them mere youngsters—got down to the difficult business of framing the constitution.

Delegates in their 30s outnumbered any other age group at the historic convention in Philadelphia and the average age was about 42, as compared with the 57 average of the United States senate today.

Nearly Wrecked in July

Founding Father James Madison was 36 and his Virginia colleague, Governor Edmund Randolph, 33. Pennsylvania's one-legged, brilliant Gouverneur Morris was 35, Massachusetts' able Rufus King, 32, South Carolina's Charles Pinckney, 29, and New York's great Alexander Hamilton only 30.

George Washington, convention president, was 55, while oldest of the 55 "clear-headed, firm-purposed but willing to compromise" delegates was the 61-year-old master conciliator, Dr. Benjamin Franklin.

Battles between the large and small states, combined with wilting heat and the onslaught of lively stable flies threatened to wreck the convention in July.

Compromise on Congress
The major conflict was over proportional representation in the national legislature.

The large states' plan, originally offered by the Virginia delegation, called for representation in both houses on a population basis.

The small states' plan, presented by New Jersey, was to continue the confederation idea of a single house and an equal state vote.

The Connecticut compromise finally adopted provided for lower house representations of the states on a population basis and an upper house elected by an equal vote.

Many proposals of the delegates would seem almost fantastic to modern politicians. Randolph, who introduced the Virginia plan, wanted an executive authority composed of three men because he feared a single executive would make the government too much like a monarchy.

Hamilton, advocate of a strong central government, suggested the President be given an absolute veto on acts of congress.

Some wanted the President to be elected by congress and Gouverneur Morris urged that he serve for life. He also proposed life terms for senators, to be appointed by the President, and objected to distribution of representa-

Erosion Control by Terraces, Strip Crops

The above photo shows a field properly terraced and the newly constructed terraces planted to non-erosive strip crops. This land will retain its fertile top soil because of these protective measures. The strip crop will be between the terraces after the first year.

Many farms of Southwest Arkansas have fields that require terracing for efficient erosion control. Sheet erosion quickly turns into gully erosion on unprotected, sloping fields. Terraces are placed horizontally around the hillside to catch the runoff water before it can build up destructive velocity. Variable grade terraces serve to carry away excess water, reducing the velocity so that soil in suspension settles out. Level terraces hold the water for absorption and are used in areas of light rainfall. Each successive terrace carries its share of the water which has accumulated between the terrace lines.

Scientists Point Way Toward Ideal Living

THAT party of scientists who sailed from Honolulu the other day on a two-months trip to study a four-minute eclipse of the sun might very well be taken as a model for the rest of the world to copy.

Along with 11 tons of equipment, these scientists—there are 13 of them—are bound for one of the uninhabited Phoenix Islands, far out in the Pacific. They will set up their apparatus there and on the eighth of June they will have 240 seconds in which to study a complete eclipsed sun.

The party over, they will head for home again, having spent a good deal of money and a great deal of effort in the quest for a collection of facts which, from the dollars and cents viewpoint, will never do anyone the least good.

But the net result will be that the sum total of the race's knowledge about the infinitely mysterious world it inhabits will be increased, if only by a little.

X X X

THE point is that it is still possible for a disinterested job of this kind to be done. We can still get some high-powered brains together, spend important money and make elaborate plans for an expedition whose fruits can't be turned into cash or reserved as the exclusive property of anyone.

The knowledge gained by this expedition will be available to Germans and Russians and Englishmen and Japanese as well as to Americans. It will not be patented and let out on a royalty basis by any man or corporation, or jealously guarded in the archives of any foreign office. It will be as free as the air to any human being who has the wit to use it.

That sort of thing isn't as common as it might be, these days. For the keynote to this 20th century world seems to be unrestrained rivalry—every man (or nation) for himself, and the devil take the hindmost, as he is quite likely to do. The idea that the race will be better off if it works together and stops trying to gain advantage for one group at the expense of some other has hardly so much as dawned on us.

Yet it ought to be obvious that we simply aren't going to be able to live by this devil-take-the-hindmost creed so very much longer. The devil is following altogether too closely on our heels. The world has grown too small. Like it or not, the human race is going to—wherever it is going—as a group.

X X X

SO THIS little scientific expedition shines like a good deed in a naughty world. It is a hint that we aren't necessarily doomed to go on cutting one another's throats, after all. We can co-operate, we can make the gain of one the gain of all.

And if we ever do set out to live up to this example set by our scientists, what a world we can make for ourselves.

Beautifulizing the Job

SHAKESPEARE once asked, ironically, "What's in a name?" The answer of 20th century America seems to be, "Everything."

Samuel Fassler, commissioner of buildings in Manhattan urged the other day that master plumbers adopt for themselves the new name of "sanitary engineer," so as to make a better impression on the public.

And why not? The whole idea these days seems to be to beautify your job with a fancy title. We have seen the press agent blossom out as a public relations counsel, the undertaker become a mortician, the hairdressers become a beautician and the movie actress become an artist. If the plumber wishes to become a sanitary engineer, why shouldn't he?

Knowing How Heart Diseases Differ Is Vital in Determining Treatment

(No. 218)

The pain of coronary thrombosis is like that of angina pectoris and, like angina, occurs because some part of the heart muscle is deprived of its necessary blood supply.

However, in coronary thrombosis, the blood supply is cut off because a clot or some other obstruction forms in one of the blood vessels leading into the heart or in one of the branches of these blood vessels. Thus a portion of the heart muscle has to do without any blood and pain results.

Moreover, the obstruction, once established, is sufficiently long in its duration to permit a good deal of damage to the part of the heart concerned.

Naturally, the seriousness of the condition depends on the size of the blood vessel that is obstructed, the location in the heart of the muscles which are compelled to do without blood and the ability of the heart to get along without that part of the muscle until nourishment can come in from some other vessels.

Since the stopping of the blood vessel is well known permanent, the pain in coronary thrombosis may last hours or days instead of minutes.

The person who suffers from an attack of coronary thrombosis is likely to be quite sick. His breath comes with difficulty even when he is lying flat on his back; in fact, he may not even be able to lie down flat. Often he is compelled to lie propped up in bed.

He may cough because fluid accumulates in his lungs. The interference with the circulation of the blood makes his hands and feet look cold and blue. His pulse may be irregular and it is usually rapid. Moreover, the difficulty in keeping up the circulation makes the blood pressure fall to a low level.

In cases of this type, the doctor may order electrocardiographic tracings which will reveal to him the extent of interference in the heart action. It is not possible to say that every attack of coronary thrombosis will be just like every other attack.

The symptoms vary in practically every case, but nowadays the condition is sufficiently well recognized to permit accurate diagnosis in the vast majority of instances.

It is, of course, exceedingly important to know the difference between angina pectoris and coronary thrombosis.

The patient with coronary thrombosis must lie absolutely at rest for many weeks and under medical supervision until the amount of damage to the heart can be ascertained.

The person with angina pectoris not complicated by any other condition may go about his work, provided he is suitably advised as to the extent of his exertion and as to the proper procedure when the attacks do occur.

Gunmen Slowing Up
CORPUS CHRISTI, Texas.—(AP)—Sheriff William Shely of Nueces county, who joined the Texas Rangers at the age of 17 in 1889, declares few gunmen of today, either outlaws or officers, can shoot with the speed of early day Texans.

"The old time outlaw, although he might be the most dangerous sort of man," he adds, "preserved a code of honor of sorts. You could depend on his word the same as that of any other man."

CHAPTER XXVI

BEFORE noon on Friday, Sybil drove out to the airport to meet Bob. She had wired him about the cruel murder of her uncle, sparring the details, and begging him to return at once. In reply, he promised to take the first available plane.

Sybil's eyes were red with weeping as she greeted him. "You don't mean it, Sybil!" he protested, searching her face for a denial.

"It's true, Bob. I can't believe it myself. But there's no doubt—"

"Who did it? When did it happen? Where?"

Briefly she explained how she had come to find the body.

"I couldn't sleep, Bob," she emphasized, "thinking of Uncle John all alone in the house with that money—"

Bob started. "The money! I'd completely forgotten it. Whoever did this—"

"That's what the police believe," Sybil agreed, "Someone who knew about the money—"

"But that's impossible, Sybil," he protested, "Nobody knew about it except Joan and I—by the way, how is Joan?"

Sybil sighed. This was not the moment to tell him—not yet. She must lead up to it slowly, with infinite patience. Above all, he must believe that he wrung the truth from her, against her will.

"I haven't seen her this morning," he replied, evasively.

"The poor girl!" he exclaimed. "I know she's as broken up about this as you are—"

Sybil broke into fresh, violent sobs.

Sybil did not answer immediately.

"Tell me, Sybil," he insisted. "Who did it? My God, I could tear the fellow apart with my bare hands."

"Bob, my dear, I'd sooner cut out my tongue than tell you—"

"What are you driving at?" He frowned as he tried to read her thoughts.

Sybil looked up into his eyes with a plea for understanding.

"Her voice was low, and it trembled as she answered: 'The police think—oh, I know they're wrong. Bob! I know there's been a horrible, inconceivable mistake—'

"Whom do the police think did it?"

"Joan Barrett," She breathed the name tremulously, as if it were torn from her very heart.

BOB'S face became instantly distorted with a terrible anger, and he grasped Sybil's shoulder in a cruel grip.

"You, Sybil!" he fairly shrieked. "What are you trying to say?"

She raised her eyes to his pitifully, and as she saw the anger in his face, she drew back instinctively. For the moment she thought that he would strike her.

"Forgive me, Bob," she begged. "It is ridiculous, of course. But that is what the police are saying. I was afraid, when they told you, that you might do something—"

Bob, you must be sensible about this."

"Sensible! The whole thing would be crazy, if it weren't such a damnable outrage. I'll wring their necks if they dare to suggest such a thing to me—"

"But that is what I'm trying to prevent, Bob. Don't you see, you won't help her that way . . . you will only make it worse."

Gradually his anger subsided, and he sank back, stunned.

After a moment, he asked, quietly: "Where is she? Have they—"

Sybil shook her head and sighed plaintively. "Nobody knows, Bob. It's all such a mystery. Dorothy Stark admitted that Joan went to see Uncle John last night about a

How Hollywood Movie Strike Started and Why It's Drawing a Poor "Gate"

HOLLYWOOD.—What this movie strike needs is a good director—a De Mille or a Michael Curtiz. The way things are going, you scarcely can distinguish between the pickets and the autograph hunters hanging around the studio gates.

The most exciting thing that has happened inside the studios was the sidown strike of a bumble bee on Marlene Dietrich.

There's no romance in the thing; no sex appeal but for the walk-on appearances of a few women hair-dressers in the strikers' ranks; no dramatic scenes, no marches around the walls of a make-believe Jericho.

There were so few pickets at 20th Century-Fox the other day that news photographers had to entice them from the various gates and concentrate them in one place to get the effect of a crowd.

Complex Plot
Principals in the strike have not been very shrewdly cast. Desk pounding, loud voiced Pat Casey representing the Motion Picture Producers' Association, is a former vaudeville booking agent, has been a labor conciliator since 1926 and as a hobby, sponsors a girls' indoor baseball team.

Mild, articulate, Boston-born Charles Lessing, leader of the strikers and for 15 years president of the United Scenic Artists, makes a hobby of painting.

Casey and Lessing, pink faced and white haired, look alike. They have been friends for 30 years.

Another thing about this strike, as a movie fun attraction, is the complexity of its plot. Scarcely anybody seems to know what it's all about, or who's the villain.

This reporter talked to 11 picketing strikers. Eight said: "We want more dough and shorter hours." One glanced covertly at him before whispering: "Buddy, it's just a fight between the unions."

Two said: "We're striking for union recognition. Then we'll talk terms." They were all partly right.

But to understand what this disagreement is about, you really have to go back through the history of previous strikes in Hollywood.

On the Record
First was the Actors' Equity strike of 1929. Equity, which had been affiliated with the American Federation of Labor since 1919, was badly licked in an attempt to force movie producers to hire only union players.

To this day, Equity has no organization in Hollywood.

There is a distant relationship, however, because the Screen Actors' Guild, subsequently formed as a protest against the alleged company unionism of the Motion Picture Academy, has a delegation representing it in the Federated Motion Picture Crafts, which is affiliated with the A. F. of L. Yet the Guild does not belong to the A. F. of L., because three-fourths of its 1200 members have not voted for the affiliation.

Indeed, the vote would require the approval of three-fourths of the member actors who earn, or receive, more than $250 a week.

These would include stars such as Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, Paul Muni, Adolphe Menjou, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell, Frank Morgan, Guild President Robert Montgomery, Francis Lederer, Fredric March, Leslie Howard, and many others with the notable exceptions of Greta Garbo, Marlene Dietrich, Myrna Loy and Jean Harlow.

In 1933 came a strike of the international Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, which is another offshoot of the A. F. of L. This strike involved cameramen, sound men, laboratory workers, projectionists and studio mechanics, 3130 people in all.

They stayed out a month, delayed some productions, shut down a few studios. After it was all over, hundreds of technicians were unable to get their jobs back at any wage. Many of these men are serving as strike breakers in the present crisis.

Painters Stubborn
Early last April another strike threatened. Out of the negotiations came a new wage scale with a general 10 per cent increase.

Lump operators now receive $7.26 for a six-hour day, property men $7.26; grips or scenery movers, $7.70; laborers 82½ cents an hour instead of 50 to 55.

The painters refused to enter the pact because they wanted to bring with them the workers in vaguely allied crafts—the makeup experts, hair dressers, scenic artists and architectural draftsmen. The producers say no. The producers couldn't see why, range-putter, an eyebrow straightener, or a hair curler should be called a painter.

The situation became acute by May 1, when the Federated Motion Picture Crafts, embracing the so-called unrecognized unions, called a strike.

Included in the strike were several affiliated crafts—painters, scenic artists, make-up artists, stationary engineers, plumbers, costumers, moulders, cooks and culinary workers, machinists and boiler-makers.

Of moulders (plaster cast men) and plumbers, there are only 22 in the movie industry. Of boiler-makers, none. There are a lot of painters, though, and make-up specialists—perhaps 2000 of them.

Balance of Power
Painters and their allied craftsmen refuse to talk about specific demands until they are granted union recognition as the bargaining agency for the rouge patters and hair curlers. This is the crux of the quarrel.

Pat Casey and the powerful movie companies behind him want to talk terms before they talk about representation.

Both sides are hanging breathlessly on the decision of the Screen Actors' Guild, with which in turn, hangs the balance of power. The studios can and have, hired strikebreakers for the minor jobs now vacated, but they can't hire substitute stars. The actors, admittedly related to Mr. Green's A. F. of L., are in a tough spot.

They have contracts with the producers and very nice contracts, too. Yet, if they don't strike, they must incur the enmity of the people—i. e., the painters—whose co-operation is essential to their good appearance on the screen. They would face also the faltering loyalty of their union fans. It's all very confusing.

Girls usually cease to grow between the ages of 15 and 16; boys go on developing for an additional two years or more.

MRS. SID HENRY TELEPHONE 821

Now that Spring is here, the old fields wear their beautiful new garments that are spun from dew and moon-light, wind and rain and sun. So shall I step from my dark frock of care, And put on gladness as the fields have done. So shall I slip my cloak of weariness from off my shoulders, and be glad today; New hope within my heart, and my new dress, Threaded with faith and courage, shall be gay As the shimmering flower-dotted fields today.—Selected.

THE Baccarat Music will be rehearsed at 7:30 Friday night at the First Methodist church. All the singers are urged to be prompt, as the rehearsal will only last one hour.

Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton have returned from New Orleans, La., where they attended a meeting of the Southern Baptist convention.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rounton, Sr., were Wednesday over-night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Rounton in Ashdown.

Miss Christine Frith returned home Wednesday after a few weeks stay in Little Rock. She was accompanied home by Mrs. George McBride.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Higginson and Hoyce Smith was beautifully solemnized, though simple in plan, Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride on South Hervey street. The impressive ceremony was held in the presence of relatives and intimate friends, by Rev. James F. Brewer, Jr., brother-in-law of the bride from the First Baptist church in Ghent, Ky.

The reception rooms were decorated with baskets and vases of lovely spring flowers and ferns. The nuptial vows were said in the living room before an improvised altar of ferns and Dorothy Perkins roses, at either end of the place of ceremony, were tall floor standards filled with delphinium, pink roses, sweet peas and lilies combined with Queen Anne lace. From the back of the altar rose tall white tapers, which were lighted for the ceremony by Luther Higginson Jr., brother of the bride.

Preceding the service, Mrs. B. C. Hyatt played Buena Noite followed by Miss Claudia Mann of Malvern singing "Because" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Wagner's Lohengrin announced the entrance of the bride and groom, who were unattended. During the taking of the vows, Mrs. Hyatt played "The Rosary."

The bride was a picture of girlish loveliness in her wedding gown of figured chiffon with matching accessories, her flowers were a corsage of sweet peas and baby breath. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Higginson and is a graduate of Hope High school and Ouchits college, Arkadelphia and for the past two years has been a popular sales lady with Geo. W. Robison & Co.

Mr. Smith came to our city from Atlanta, Texas, about 18 months ago, as manager of the local A. & P. store, and through his splendid business ability and unusual pleasing personality has made a place for himself both in the business and social world.

Immediately after the service, an informal reception was held, and after congratulations the bride cut the cake, which centered the lace covered beauty table in the dining room. Tall white tapers burned in flower covered holders on the four corners of the table. A delightful ice course was served with cake squares by Misses Elizabeth Evans, Mary Sue Anderson, Minnieola and Ruby Owen.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left via motor on a wedding trip to Mexico City. On their return they will be at home in the Allen Duplex on West Fifth street.

The Methodist choir rehearsal will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening at the church. Mrs. John Wellborn will direct in the absence of Mrs. Ralph Rounton.

Those from First Methodist church attending the Prescott District Conference at Gordon Wednesday were: Dr. J. H. Weaver, Cliff Franks, J. J. Honeycutt, Miss Mamie Bryant, Miss Dore McLaughlin, and Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Harrison.

Celebrating the birthday anniversary of Mrs. C. C. Spragins, Mrs. J. T. West entertained at an exquisitely appointed luncheon on Wednesday at her home on Division street. The luncheon table was laid with a handsome imported cloth and centered with a low blue bowl of vari-hued pansies. Invited guests were: Mrs. G. F. Miles, Mrs. R. M. Patterson, Mrs. Clyde Hill, Mrs. M. H. Barlow, Mrs. A. L. Black, Mrs. L. A. Foster, Mrs. R. M. Bryant, Mrs. H. H. Stuart, Mrs. Robert Bridwell and Mrs. B. C. Hyatt. From the back of the altar rose tall white tapers, which were lighted for the ceremony by Luther Higginson Jr., brother of the bride.

Preceding the service, Mrs. B. C. Hyatt played Buena Noite followed by Miss Claudia Mann of Malvern singing "Because" and "The Sweetest Story Ever Told." Wagner's Lohengrin announced the entrance of the bride and groom, who were unattended. During the taking of the vows, Mrs. Hyatt played "The Rosary."

The bride was a picture of girlish loveliness in her wedding gown of figured chiffon with matching accessories, her flowers were a corsage of sweet peas and baby breath. She is the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Higginson and is a graduate of Hope High school and Ouchits college, Arkadelphia and for the past two years has been a popular sales lady with Geo. W. Robison & Co.

Mr. Smith came to our city from Atlanta, Texas, about 18 months ago, as manager of the local A. & P. store, and through his splendid business ability and unusual pleasing personality has made a place for himself both in the business and social world.

Immediately after the service, an informal reception was held, and after congratulations the bride cut the cake, which centered the lace covered beauty table in the dining room. Tall white tapers burned in flower covered holders on the four corners of the table. A delightful ice course was served with cake squares by Misses Elizabeth Evans, Mary Sue Anderson, Minnieola and Ruby Owen.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith left via motor on a wedding trip to Mexico City. On their return they will be at home in the Allen Duplex on West Fifth street.

The Methodist choir rehearsal will be held at 7:30 Thursday evening at the church. Mrs. John Wellborn will direct in the absence of Mrs. Ralph Rounton.

Those from First Methodist church attending the Prescott District Conference at Gordon Wednesday were: Dr. J. H. Weaver, Cliff Franks, J. J. Honeycutt, Miss Mamie Bryant, Miss Dore McLaughlin, and Rev. and Mrs. Fred R. Harrison.

Celebrating the birthday anniversary of Mrs. C. C. Spragins, Mrs. J. T. West entertained at an exquisitely appointed luncheon on Wednesday at her home on Division street. The luncheon table was laid with a handsome imported cloth and centered with a low blue bowl of vari-hued pansies. Invited guests were: Mrs. G. F. Miles, Mrs. R. M. Patterson, Mrs. Clyde Hill, Mrs. M. H. Barlow, Mrs. A. L. Black, Mrs. L. A. Foster, Mrs. R. M. Bryant, Mrs. H. H. Stuart, Mrs. Robert Bridwell and Mrs. B. C. Hyatt. The honoree was presented with a number of dainty gifts.

The Baccarat Music will be rehearsed at 7:30 Friday night at the First Methodist church. All the singers are urged to be prompt, as the rehearsal will only last one hour.

Dr. and Mrs. W. R. Hamilton have returned from New Orleans, La., where they attended a meeting of the Southern Baptist convention.

Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Rounton, Sr., were Wednesday over-night guests of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Rounton in Ashdown.

Miss Christine Frith returned home Wednesday after a few weeks stay in Little Rock. She was accompanied home by Mrs. George McBride.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Higginson and Hoyce Smith was beautifully solemnized, though simple in plan, Wednesday evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride on South Hervey street. The impressive ceremony was held in the presence of relatives and intimate friends, by Rev. James F. Brewer, Jr., brother-in-law of the bride from the First Baptist church in Ghent, Ky.

The reception rooms were decorated with baskets and vases of lovely spring flowers and ferns. The nuptial vows were said in the living room before an improvised altar of ferns and Dorothy Perkins roses, at either end of the place of ceremony, were tall floor standards filled with delphinium, pink roses, sweet peas and lilies combined with Queen Anne lace. From the back of the altar rose tall white tapers, which were lighted for the ceremony by Luther Higginson Jr., brother of the bride.

In Car-Death Protest

LONDON—(AP)—Parents in several parts of Britain are organizing demonstrations to protest the "slaughter" of school children by speeding automobiles.

Fathers and mothers of children who have to cross Westway—a dangerous arterial thoroughfare in the western suburbs of London—demonstrated recently to draw attention to their demand for a 30-mile-an-hour speed limit.

A procession of 250 strong crossed and re-crossed the road in pouring rain, holding up the traffic on a busy Saturday afternoon. Motorists were confronted with banners bearing slogans "Make Westway Safe" and "It May Be Your Child Next Time."

STORIES IN STAMPS

BY I. S. KLEIN

DEFENDS SELF BY ITS SMELL

HALFWAY between an elephant and a horse is the tapir, shy animal of the South American and Malayan jungles. One of the most defenseless animals in the world, this strange creature depends mostly on its keen sense of smell to avoid its enemies.

With hoots like the five-toed horse of ages ago, the tapir resembles that domestic animal also in the shape of its head. But jutting out from its face comes the short trunk that is used very much like an elephant's trunk. Tapirs are vegetarians and wallow mostly in jungle swamps. A Malayan tapir can be distinguished from one of South America by the absence of a mane and by a blanket of white thrown over its body. North Borneo pictures this animal on a stamp issued in 1909.

Texas State Champions Play Here Friday at 3:30

Mt. Pleasant Cubs Meet Lumberjacks

Carroll Schooley to Hurl Sixth Game of Season for Locals

The Williams Lumber company baseball team will clash with the Texas State champion semi-pro club of Mt. Pleasant at 3:30 p. m. Friday at Fair Park.

It will be the sixth game of the season for the Lumberjacks, having won three and dropped two. Manager Lloyd Coop said Thursday that Carroll Schooley would face the Mt. Pleasant champs.

The game Friday will be the only home contest of the week, the Lumberjacks having a scheduled game with the Biene Lumber company at Gordon Sunday afternoon.

The starting lineup will be: Carroll Schooley, pitcher; Sparks, catcher; Robins, first base; Messer, second base; W. Cook, shortstop; Ramsey, third base; Allen, left field; J. Cook, centerfield; Rogers, right field.

The above lineup is not in batting order, Manager Coop being undecided upon batting positions Thursday.

The visiting team will probably present the fastest club seen here this season.

Last Sunday the Mt. Pleasant team defeated the Sun Oilers of Kilgore, 7 to 1, for its seventh victory of the season against only one setback.

The only defeat suffered by the Texas sandlot champions came at the hands of the House of David team in the second of a two-game series, Mt. Pleasant winning the first game, 2 to 1.

Sportsmen to Invade Central Idaho Wilderness Full of Fish and Game LAND OF PLENTY

Unspoiled Waters, Virgin Timberland Await Rod and Gun

SUN VALLEY, Idaho—(NEA)—The veil of obscurity shortly will be lifted from a large slice of the nation's last primitive wilderness.

With their appetites whetted by thousands of square miles of virgin timberland, mountains, and lakes replete with fish and game, sportsmen soon will begin their initial trek to the great central Idaho wilderness north of here.

There, in a primitive area of 25,000 square miles, much of which has never felt the tread of a white man, they will begin the penetration of a good-sized section of America's last frontier.

They will fish roaring mountain streams the denizens of which never have seen a hook. They will tramp forests far from trail's end.

When the last of the great snows disappear, probably late this month, Sun Valley will be prepared for an influx of sportsmen eager to test their mettle in the wilderness.

In the country of the "River of No Return," beyond the mighty Sawtooth Mountains, they will vie with nature in a thrilling and dramatic contest.

By pack train from Sun Valley they will cross the Sawtooth range through rocky Galena Summit, 29 miles away. Here, in the headwaters of the Salmon river, the fabled "River of No Return," they will find the kind of fishing which is the dream of sportsmen.

Lakes and Streams Unspoiled Through rocky canyons the Salmon makes its way across Idaho in great, meandering curves for almost 500 miles, the longest river wholly within the confines of one state to be found in North America.

The boiling, spray-flecked river is the only obstacle that turned back the intrepid expedition led by Lewis and Clark in 1805. After that it remained unconquered for almost 100 years, until an adventurous riverman rode a flatbottomed scow through its thundering rapids to the mouth.

The canyon through which the Salmon flows is the second deepest in North America and where it has slashing its way through the Seven Devils Mountains peaks are 7000 feet above the river's surface.

Along the rim of the great canyon is more than a million and a half acres of the wildest country in America.

It is a region of more than 1000 lakes, most of them offering virgin fishing. Rivers like the Salmon, the Wood, and the Lost are streams so unspoiled that they might well set a real fisherman to gibbering with delight.

The Wood river itself, with its numerous tributaries, offers more than 100 miles of fishing within 30 miles of Sun Valley. And the Wood only touches the great wilderness.

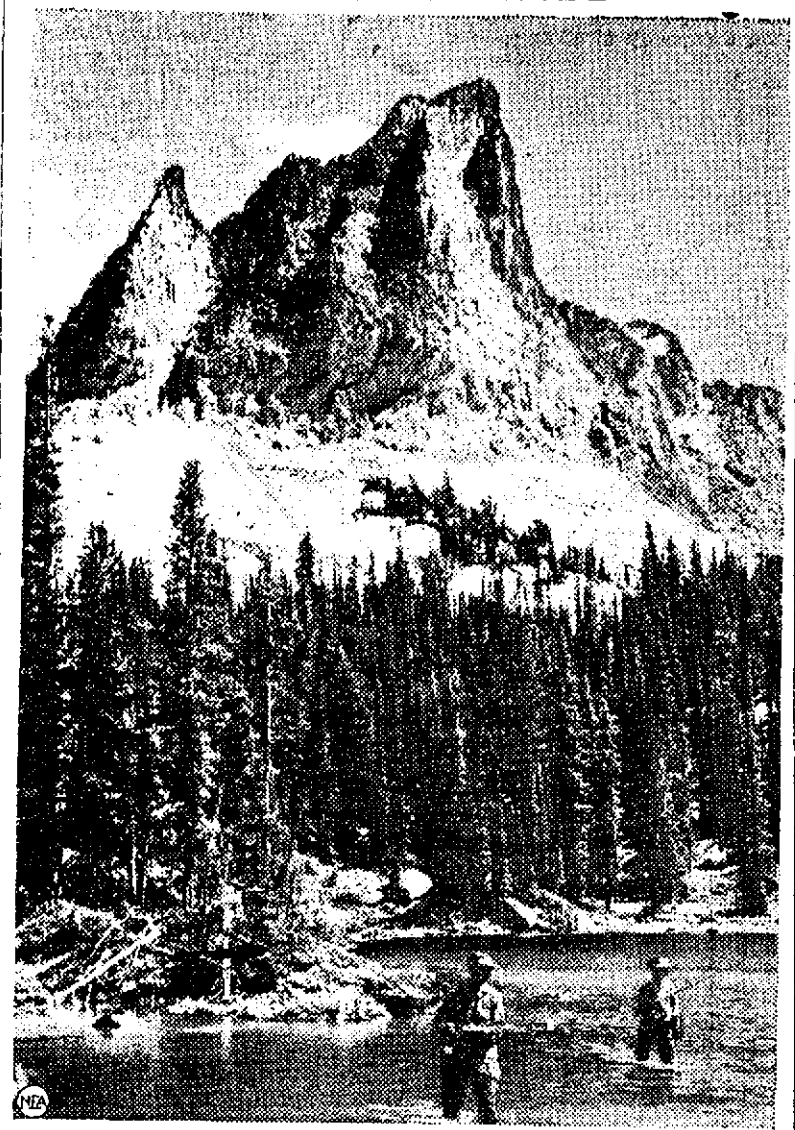

Hunting Matches the Fishing In lakes and streams of the area are rainbow, brook, and native trout, steelhead, Dolly Varden, and landlocked ocean run salmon, some of which have scaled 40 pounds.

The virgin fishing region requires stout legs and stout pack horses.

The fisherman who ascends into the high mountain country to cast a fly into some uncharted lake may perhaps be rewarded by a sight of a great herd of mountain goats, for within 40 miles of Sun Valley are the greatest concentration of mountain goat ranges in the United States.

The region abounds in deer, elk, bear, and mountain lion. Excellent sagehen and grouse shooting are among the joys of the area. Ducks are to be found along the streams all year around.

It sounds fantastic, but it's all there.

TOLEDO—Sure, and you'll be after remembering Roger Bresnahan, the Duke of Truise?

You know—Christy Mathewson's old battery mate, and the man John McGraw said was the greatest catcher he ever saw?

Well, Roger's down here selling beer for a living. Of course, he's the best salesman in town because Roger was always one to be the best at whatever he did, be it pitching, or catching, or base stealing, or hitting, or thinking.

This is sort of a comeback for Roger. During the depression ask your father about it, junior! Roger lost, among other things, his $55,000 home here and it looked like the final out in the ninth inning for the old gentleman.

But he got another turn at bat and, as usual, he's making the most of it. If you don't mind us saying so, Roger carries a lot of weight here in this town where scules are made. They haven't forgotten him saving baseball here back in 1916 by buying the franchise from a money-grasping owner who sold promising players before they got off the train.

Are't Making Catchers Speaking of promising players, we asked Roger what he thought of the present-day young catchers. Roger snorted.

"Harrumph," or some such expression, "harrumph. They ain't making

Brawl Climaxes Card-Giant Game

Carl Hubbell Wins 22nd Game, Beating Dizzy Dean, 4 to 1

NEW YORK.—(AP)—President Ford Frick of the National League Thursday fired Dizzy Dean and Jimmy Rippe each $50 for their fight in the St. Louis Cardinals-New York Giants game at St. Louis Wednesday.

By WHITNEY MARTIN

ST. LOUIS.—(AP)—It was billed as the "Battle of the Century," but the 26,339 fans lured to Sportsman's Park Wednesday to watch Jerome "Dizzy" Dean try to stop the winning streak of Carl Hubbell had no idea the St. Louis Cardinals and New York Giants would take it too literally.

Almost lost in the turmoil of a free-for-all brawl which boiled over infield and overflowed into the outfield, with practically all the players participating, was the fact that King Carl turned in his 22nd consecutive victory in two seasons, 4 to 1, with another hurling masterpiece.

The game packed drama from the start, the tension increasing inning by inning to an anti-climax in the sixth when a balk called on Dizzy was followed by a three-run Giant splurge and prolonged verbal outbursts from the Cards directed at Umpire George Barr.

Rippe, Dean Fight

In the ninth Jimmy Rippe, Giant center fielder, was forced to pounce to escape one of Dizzy's fast ones. Dean was working with a taped right thumb which made an occasional delivery go off on a tangent like a wild discuss throw, but the Giants chose to believe the Card ace was dusting them off.

Rippe bunted down the first base line to draw Dean to the bag. The first attempt was foul. The second was juggled by Second Baseman Brown, and Rippe was safe. But at the two met at the bag they came together as by appointment.

In a split-second fists were swinging, and in another split second the dugouts were emptied and players were swarming on the field like flies. A half-dozen private fights started, the men rapping out good clean singles off each other's anatomies.

The police, the umpires and other outside help finally restored order, and Gus Mancuso, Giant catcher, and Mickey Owen, Card backstop, were had to be sent to the hospital.

Before and after this uprising Hubbell was going calmly about his work. An occasional hit would bounce from a Card bat, but with men on bases King Carl would bend down, peek away at the batters' soft spots with that crazy screwball of his, and the Cards again just took their turn.

Medwick Gets Homer

Ducky Medwick caught one on the nose in the second inning, sending the ball into the left-field bleachers for a home run and that run loomed larger in the first major argument occurred.

Whitehead, Giant second baseman, singled to start the frame, and went to second on Hubbell's sacrifice. Bartell lifted a fly which Durocher collared in deep short, but Umpire Barr ruled Dean had balked on the pitch.

The Cards swarmed around Barr, a lone blue figure in a circle of baisterous, dust-kicking white-clad players. He stuck by his guns, basing his decision on a new ruling clarifying the balk. The ruling is that a pitcher must come to a pause in his delivery after looking at the bases.

After that Dizzy, madder than a wet hen, poured the ball into the batters' and they responded with a brace of singles, which, combined with Pepper Martin's error on Bartell's long drive brought in three runs. The fourth came in the night after the big brawl, Rippe scoring on Dunning's pinch double.

Dean took the defeat—his second in seven starts—good naturedly, but maintained he should have had the game, 1 to 0.

Hubbell allowed but six hits, two coming in the second inning and the others scattered. He fanned seven, and ended his brilliant performance by whiffing the last two men to face him.

The 22nd day's work was just another day's work for the Meeker, Okla., southpaw. "I'm glad I won."

Bridges Shuts Out Athletics, 9 to 0

Tigers Win From Mack's First Time in Five Starts

PHILADELPHIA.—(AP)—Tommy Bridges, knocked out of the box at Detroit May 19, came back Wednesday to shutout the league-leading Athletics with five hits as the Detroit Tigers defeated Connie Mack's team for the first time in five starts, 9 to 0.

Despite the defeat, the A's retained first place over the New York Yankees by nine percentage points, the Chicago-New York game being postponed.

Bridges was in fine form, issuing only two bases on balls and striking out six. He was in trouble only in the first and sixth when the A's put men on first and second with two out. Not a single Philadelphia player reached third.

The Tigers scored three runs in the first on Cochran's single, Geringer's double, Greenberg's single and Newsum's wild throw on Walker's ground-er.

Luther Thomas then held the Tigers in check until the sixth when the visitors scored two more on Greenberg's walk, Walker's single, Fox's sacrifice, and English's single.

Ross replaced Thomas in the seventh and the Tigers scored four runs off him in the ninth.

Clinic on Venereal Disease in Negroes Is to Be Held Here

Free Clinics Will Follow Survey Now Under Way in Hempstead

FIELD AGENT HERE

H. S. Barbour Explains Object and Support of Local Campaign

A free health clinic, fostered by the Southern Liberal Organization of Forrest City, Ark., and designed to eradicate social diseases among members of the negro race, will be held in Hope in the near future, it was announced Thursday.

The organization has begun a survey of Hempstead county with the view of learning the seriousness of social diseases among the negro population here.

NERVES ON EDGE?

Mrs. Mae Pettit of 705 Rector Ave., Hot Springs, Ark., said "I never miss an opportunity to recommend Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as a tonic for it has done me a world of good. To benefit those who have 'nerves' associated with minor functional disturbances, also to give a person more strength and improve the appetite, I don't believe Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription can be beat." Buy now!

The clinic will follow, to be held in specified places where competent examination and diagnosis is available free of charge. To those found suffering from any disease covered by the clinic, corrective serums are furnished.

Clinic Is Endorsed

The organization is being supported here by Mayor Albert Graves, Dr. J. G. Martindale, and local negro physicians. Here are letters from both the mayor and Dr. Martindale:

"To Whom It May Concern:

"I have just been talking to H. S. Barbour with reference to the program of the Southern Liberal Organization of Forrest City, Arkansas, for treatment and control of social diseases among the negroes, and, from this discussion and an examination of the letters of recommendation and the newspapers which he is carrying, I feel that he must be doing good work, and I am sure that he and his organization have an opportunity to be of much service to the communities in which they are working.

Yours truly,

Albert Graves, Mayor."

"Southern Liberal Organization, Forrest City, Ark.

"Dear Sir: I have just talked to H. S. Barbour, relative to the program of taking up the question of the social diseases among the negro population in this county. I assure you that I am heartily in accord with the movement and can see nothing but a great help for the colored people in co-operating in the movement. I will be glad to co-operate with your program in any way that I can.

Yours very truly,

J. G. Martindale, M. D."

Launched 2 Years Ago

The Forrest City organization, comprised of negro leaders in the state, launched the anti-social disease campaign two years ago, and since that time, have discovered and treated more than 1,500 cases in the state.

This year efforts are being made to extend the activities of the organization into northern Louisiana and northeast Texas.

The local campaign is headed by H. S. Barbour, negro graduate of the University of Washington, Columbia University and former Tuskegee Institute instructor, who is now the field secretary of the organization.

"We acquire our funds from three principal sources," Barbour said. "We publish our own newspaper, and derive some funds from that source. We occasionally are included in grants from philanthropic foundations, and a small percentage is raised through voluntary contributions given by interested persons.

"We feel that social diseases cannot be eradicated by simply ignoring their presence. Among the members of our race, the seriousness of such infections is not always realized by the patient as an individual.

"Thus it is that we, as an organization, are attempting, through a program of education and material assistance, to reduce, if not eliminate the more vicious of the social diseases among our people.

"We procure necessary serums with the larger portion of our funds and we are always given whole-hearted co-operation by local doctors. Upon examination, if a patient's blood test indicates the presence of the diseases, he is provided with the serum, which is relatively inexpensive, and his only expense is the small charge made by the doctor administering the serum at intervals," Barbour said.

Gigantic Stride in Aviation, "Made in Japan"

A non-stop range of 10,000 miles is claimed for the new aerial giant above, just completed by the Aircraft Institute of Tokyo Imperial University and made entirely of Japanese materials. It is expected to fly for 80 hours on a single fueling, the gasoline tanks having a capacity of 1500 gallons.

tives on a population basis only.

"Not liberty," said Morris, "but property is the main object of society."

Franklin Champlous Poor

Charles Pinckney, another "property man," would have required a property qualification of $100,000 for the Presidency, $50,000 for a judgeship, and like proportions for congressmen.

Replied Dr. Franklin: "I dislike everything which tends to debase the spirit of the common people. If this constitution should betray a great partiality to the rich it will not only hurt us in the esteem of the most liberal and enlightened men in Europe, but will discourage the common people from removing to this country."

He urged that the President serve without salary with only his necessary expenses paid.

MANY NEVER SUSPECT CAUSE OF BACKACHES

This Old Treatment Often Brings Happy Relief

Many sufferers relieve nagging backache quickly, once they discover that the real cause of their trouble may be tired kidneys. The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking the excess acids and waste out of the blood. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

Frequent or scanty passage with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney weakness, may be the cause of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, lumbago, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.
